House or home?

The work in the exhibition at Wellington House curated by Frances Guy, Curator of Pallant House Gallery, will feature five of the six artists that won awards as part of Outside In 2007: John Cull, Peter Cutts, Andrew Hood, Joel Howie and Zoe Leonard.

Houses can be a place of safety and refuge, something we often take for granted, but for people who are homeless or have experienced homelessness or live in houses not of their own choosing they can represent something very different. Many of the artists involved in Outside In live in care homes, some are housebound and others have experienced homelessness. By their very nature of being marginalised the artists involved in this exhibition offer different interpretations of the meaning of 'house' or 'home' using a range of styles and techniques.

Outside In is a biennial open exhibition of art work by marginalised artists co-ordinated by Pallant House Gallery in Chichester, an art gallery with a collection of primarily Modern British art. Outside In was set up in 2006 to offer opportunities to artists who are marginalised due to health, disability or because their work does not fit a prescribed art norm. It offers a series of six awards, including the opportunity to have a one person show or residency at the Gallery. Outside In held its first exhibition in 2007 and in 2009 it will be taking place across the South of England.

Outside In is managed by the Head of Learning at Pallant House Gallery and a steering group. The steering group consists of marginalised artists, private donors, Creative Response (a local arts organisation for people with mental health issues) and HMP Ford (a category D open prison in West Sussex). The challenge Outside In faces is ultimately to change attitudes about who is and is not an artist and what is and is not artwork.
